A Bride at Last: 52 Lessons from the Year I Was Engaged Kristie Jo Browning

A Bride at Last chronicles the year I was engaged and planning my wedding in my late 30's and the lessons I learned each week along the way. My fiancé Mike and I navigated the crazy bridal world together attending bridal shows, visiting venues, interviewing photographers, and negotiating guest lists and family quarrels, all the while working full-time and trying to enjoy our special status while it lasted. After 15 years as a single adult, getting engaged and married was a huge change in my life. I learned so many lessons that year about myself, life, wedding planning, being a bride, and becoming a wife. Some of the lessons were serious ("A friend can stick closer than a brother"), some were simple and funny ("Don't eat too many meatballs at your wedding shower"), some were practical ("Focus on one thing a week"), and some were self-enlightening ("I have a need to drag things out"). I was surprised to learn how many conflicting emotions I could feel at the same time. I felt happiness, joy, excitement, stress, indecision, panic, anger, sadness, relief, fear, and apprehension, all throughout the year I was engaged.
